The DiMeo family is still facing the very real prospect of losing their home as Season 3 of this sitcom premieres, forcing Maya (Minnie Driver) to take a measure of last recourse: traveling to England to confront her estranged and very highmaintenance father, Martin (guest star John Cleese), in hopes he'll come through with a Ioan. Jimmy (John Ross Bowie) tries to ensure that JJ (Micah Fowler) will enjoy the trip, while Ray (Mason Cook) hatches ill-advised schemes to hit on British girls.

As this cheeky actionhorror-comedy opens Season 5, Katy O'Brian ("The Walking Dead") joins the cast as a series regular, playing Georgia "George" St. Clair, who had been a college freshman when the Zombie Apocalypse began. Since then, she has led fellow students and teachers to NewMerica, where she has emerged as a hero and political leader as the survivors try to launch a new country. Kellita Smith and Keith Allan also star.

VAN HELSING 9:01 p.m. on SYFY

Freshly resurrected once again, Vanessa (Kelly Overton) must confront her family's legacy as this action horror series, on which playwright Neil LaBute serves as showrunner, opens Season 3 with "Fresh Tendrils." Meanwhile, Axel, Scarlett (Jonathan Scarfe, Missy Peregrym) and their companions fight off the force of Blak Tek, who hope to add Scarlett to their collection of test subjects.

Jefferson has to go to Napier Frank (guest star Robert Townsend) for support when the board of Garfield High School considers shutting down the school.

CARTER

9 p.m. on WGNA

Season 1 of this breezy Canadian import comes to a close in the finale "The Ring," wherein a new clue surfaces in the mystery of Harley's (Jerry O'Connell) mother's death, just as the producer of his American TV show "Call Carter" arrives in Bishop. Perhaps Harley will be able to find closure at last, but there's a deeper mystery to solve as well: Will this show be back? Its northern production company still hasn't officially greenlit Season 2 as of this writing.

BETTER CALL SAUL 8 p.m., 10:40 p.m., 1:20 a.m. on AMC

Season 4 of this "Breaking Bad" spinoff wraps things up in a finale called "Winner," as Jimmy (Bob Odenkirk) makes the fateful decision to turn the page when it comes to his good reputation. Elsewhere, Mike (Jonathan Banks) finds himself forced into making a difficult decision of his own, while Lalo (Tony Dalton) endeavors to track down and tie up a loose end in Gus' (Giancarlo Esposito) enterprise. Rhea Seehorn also stars.

LONG LOST FAMILY 8 p.m., 12 a.m. on TLC

Hosts Chris Jacobs and Emmy-winning journalist Lisa Joyner — both of whom are adopted and have traced their own biological family members - return with a new season that features two-hour episodes running through October, each following personal stories of people searching for family members after an extended separation. The Season 5 premiere, "A Baby in a Shoe Box," finds Chris exploring the story of a woman who was left abandoned near an Ohio gas station just hours after her birth.

Like any recently separated father, Rel (Lil Rel Howery) feels guilty about not being able to see his children as often as he would like, so when the kids come to visit for the first time since he moved out, he goes overboard trying to make everything perfect in the new episode "Kids First Visit." He figures a Chicago venue called a Family Fun Center sounds like a safe bet, but it definitely falls short of its name.

cookbooks and run-of-the-mill cooking shows may find a documentary series dropping this week on Netflix of interest.

Based on chef Samin Nosrat's revolutionary cookbook of the same title, "Salt, Fat, Acid, Heat," a four-part series that begins streaming Friday, Oct. 11, explores cooking through what she contends are its four basic elements: salt, which makes foods taste more like themselves; fat, which amplifies tastes; acid, which balances flavors, brightens food and offers contrast; and heat, which provides transformation.

Master these, she maintains, and you will be a master in the kitchen. Also, the show (and the book) encourages the Anyone who's had their fill of standard home chef to think for themselves and trust their own senses and instincts, as opposed to blindly following a recipe. And the impressive photography of the sumptuous meals prepared at the end of each episode drives home the points. Just don't watch them on an empty stomach.

> "The book is great - I like to say it's radically simple," says Caroline Suh, the series' director. "... I'm just an amateur cook but I'm very into food, and I have to say some of the lessons that Samin teaches just will completely change the way that you cook, and for the better."

The series follows Nosrat as she visits four different countries to explain how a given element figures into its cuisine. In the first episode, Nosrat heads to the Tuscany region of Italy to illustrate the role of fat in Italian cooking. Here, she goes staples as focaccia and that all-American favorite, pasta.

"In order to show cooking and really not make it be intimidating," Suh explains, "we wanted to show as much of it in real time as possible. So we let the cooking scenes play out so you can see that it's really not that hard to make focaccia. It just takes time and the right ingredients. And the same with making pasta. We wanted to kind of demystify the making of these meals so it didn't seem like they were too difficult or complicated to make at home."

Other episodes take Nosrat to Japan to talk about salt's role in the food there; Mexico, to show how acid works in that cuisine; and Nosrat's old stomping grounds of Berkeley, Calif. - where she went to college and worked under the tutelage of Alice Waters at Chez Panisse - to discuss heat.

The idea, Suh says, is to get people to think more creatively when it comes to food and cooking, as it did for her.

"You see how people in the (Italy) episode really don't cook with a recipe and that's really kind of changed the way I cook," she says. "I used to follow everything to the tee and if I didn't have the exact right ingredient I would feel defeated. But now it's really opened up how I look at food in a different way.
