THE CONCEPT

Pitch Deck is a game about convincing your friends to invest in the most ridiculous startups imaginable. You all play clueless entrepreneurs and venture capitalists in a world where centaurs wear Crocs, Girl Scouts sell Adderall door-to-door, and people list their doomsday bunkers on Airbnb.

Each round, everyone combines a Pitch card from their hand with a Company card on the table to create a new business, like Uber for Piggyback rides or Tinder: The Musical. Then everyone makes a quick elevator pitch describing their businesses and why you should invest in it.

A different person plays the Lead Investor each round, who decides which idea everybody will secretly fund, based on how compelling the pitch was. Once everyone has been Lead Investor once, the funding amounts are revealed and totaled. There are two winners: the person who pitched the most valuable company and the person who invested the most in that company.

GETTING STARTED

Everyone draws a hand of 8 Pitch cards and takes a stack of 8 Funding tiles from one of the game's Venture Capital funds. The VCs all have the same investment amounts ($1-8 billion), so people are free to pick one based on which they like—or dislike?—the most. Everyone shuffles their Funding tiles and places them in a stack face down in front of themselves, so you can't see the dollar amounts. Pick someone to be the first Lead Investor. We suggest the person least familiar with the game.

PLAYING PITCH DECK

Making pitches: The Lead Investor draws 3 Company cards and reads each name out loud. Then they pick the company they want to hear pitches for, e.g. LinkedIn. Discard the other two cards. Everyone else chooses a Pitch card from their hand to pair with that company, e.g. LinkedIn for “Babies” or LinkedIn for “The profoundly lazy.”

Starting with the person to the Lead Investor's left, going clockwise, everyone gives a quick elevator pitch for their brilliantly awful business idea. It can be as short as a single word, or as long as a minute or two. The Lead Investor does not make a pitch. After everyone has made their pitch, the Lead Investor decides whose business everyone will fund, placing the Company and Pitch card pairing in the middle of the table. Their choice can be based on anything, but it's usually given to whoever gave the best or funniest or weirdest pitch.

Investing: Everyone draws the top two Funding tiles from their stack and secretly chooses one of the amounts to invest in the winning business. Then they place the chosen tiles face down on top of the card pairing, so that the amount is secret. Everyone reshuffles the unchosen tile into their stack. The person whose pitch won does not invest this round. Everyone except the Lead Investor draws a replacement Pitch card, so you always have 8 cards in your hand to begin a turn. The player to the left of the current Lead Investor becomes the new Lead Investor.

Scoring: After everyone has been Lead Investor once, reveal and add up the investment amounts, going one company at a time (for drama). Each round, there are two winners: the person who pitched the company with the highest total funding is the winning founder, and the person who invested the most in that company is the winning investor. Either play again or actually go start that company.

FINICKY RULES

Pivoting: Every card in Pitch Deck is hilarious and good. But if someone incorrectly doesn't like the cards they have in their hand, once per game they can discard their hand and draw 8 new cards.

Co-Founders: In the unlikely event you have enough friends to play with 9+ people, we recommend playing in 2-person(ish) teams. Everyone has their own hand, but you pitch together and collectively decide which cards/funding amounts to use.

Pitch Off: It is statistically possible that a game will end in a tie for one or both winners. When this happens, just like in real business, it immediately triggers a Pitch Off. Draw a Company card from the top of the deck and give each tied player a single Pitch card to play—but they can't look at it until immediately before they start their pitch. After they finish, everyone can either argue or vote on who won. Also: the drama is heightened if everyone chants “Pitch. Off. Pitch. Off. Pitch. Off.” to begin.

Venmo

COMPANY NOTES

A mobile payment service, where you pay your friends and put cute little emojis in there to suggest that you're paying for sex.

Infowars

COMPANY NOTES

A conspiracy theory website whose shirtless founder, Alex Jones, claims that Sandy Hook, 9/11, and the moon landings were staged.

PornHub

COMPANY NOTES

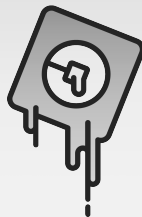

A site where you open an incognito window and stream totally normal videos. Wait I thought my speakers were muted OH GOD NO WHY WONT IT PAUSE

Wikipedia

COMPANY NOTES

A free online encyclopedia that allows virtually anyone the ability to edit or create an article. Miraculous, that all somehow works.

Uber

COMPANY NOTES

An app where you order a cab on your phone. Which sounds like it wouldn't require being sketchy as hell, but here we are apparently.

Axe Body Spray

COMPANY NOTES

A brand of cologne targeted towards boys who don't know any better. Scents include Musk, Spice, and least problematically, Oriental.

WikiLeaks

COMPANY NOTES

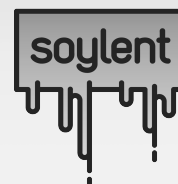

A nonprofit founded by Julian Assange in partnership with the Russian government that publishes secrets and leaked documents.

Your Company

COMPANY NOTES

Literally the place where you work. Or your chill ass lifestyle business. Or your school. Whatever. You know more about this than we do.

Soylent

COMPANY NOTES

An "open source meal replacement" that claims to meet all daily nutritional requirements. It is NOT Slimfast for men, thank you.

Ashley Madison

COMPANY NOTES

A dating site for people to have affairs. A 2015 hack revealed that the site had 70,000 "female" bots sending fake messages to men.

Ask Jeeves

COMPANY NOTES

A search engine that asks you to imagine that its results are being hand-selected for you by a fancy British valet any not a cold, unfeeling algorithm.

The Make-A-Wish Foundation

COMPANY NOTES

A nonprofit that gives children with terminal conditions a last wish. Unless it involves firearms, which honestly could have been so badass.

Fitbit

COMPANY NOTES

An activity tracker that you wear on your wrist that monitors your step count, heart rate, and masturbation vigor.

Shazam

COMPANY NOTES

An app that identifies what song is playing rather than you having to suffer the indignity of asking someone. Named after the popular 1990s Sinbad film.

Snapchat

COMPANY NOTES

A photo and video app most famous for the fact that the content disappears after a set amount of time. Insert lame sexting joke here.

Monsanto

COMPANY NOTES

An agrochemical, biotechnology, and GMO corporation founded to prove that liberals are also prone to weird anti-science views.

Yahoo! Answers

COMPANY NOTES

A site with crowdsourced answers for pressing questions like "Can your butt start higher than the crack?" and "Where do wizards live?"

Kickstarter

COMPANY NOTES

The world's largest crowdfunding site, where you can buy such highbrow items as a cooler with a built-in blender and this card game.

Fox News

COMPANY NOTES

A conservative news channel that claims "fair and balanced" reporting. It is often described as a state media outlet for the Trump administration.

Westworld

COMPANY NOTES

A futuristic, Wild West-themed amusement park populated by depressed androids. You can really find yourself in there, you know?

The Church of Scientology

COMPANY NOTES

A religion founded by L. Ron Hubbard positing that we're immortal spirits called Thetans locked in eternal conflict with the alien Xenu.

Airbnb

COMPANY NOTES

A site where people temporarily rent their places to people who definitely aren't going to use their apartment as a pop-up brothel.

Vibram FiveFingers

COMPANY NOTES

A company that sells rubbers shoes with separate toe sections meant to replicate being barefoot, and also, presumably, celibacy.

Chatroulette

COMPANY NOTES

A website where you were connected with a random person anywhere in the world to video chat. Also penises. Why were there so many penises.

TaskRabbit

COMPANY NOTES

A website where you hire freelancers to do things like clean your apartment, hang a painting, be a human table, or dispose of a body.

Crocs

COMPANY NOTES

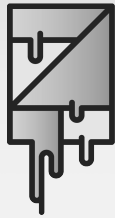

A shoe company known for its tasteless, injection molded footwear. Most frequently observed in orange and on Mario Batali's feet.

Roomba

COMPANY NOTES

It's your adorable little vacuum cleaner robot buddy! It is definitely not spying on you for the NSA. Right, little guy? You'd never do me dirty like that.

Rent the Runway

COMPANY NOTES

A fashion site where you can rent crushingly expensive designer clothes and accessories for a 4- or 8-day period for 10% of the retail price.

WebMD

COMPANY NOTES

A website to find information about medical conditions. Oh god, it's cancer, isn't it? Hey, look at this: is that a gland or a node?

Chuck E. Cheese

COMPANY NOTES

A chain of restaurants famous for pizza, ball pits, and creepy animatronic characters who probably don't come to life at night.

Ben and Jerry's

COMPANY NOTES

A hippie-type ice cream company that features flavors such as Cherry Garcia, Half Baked, Cinnamon Buns, Chunky Monkey, and Psilocybin.

Seamless

COMPANY NOTES

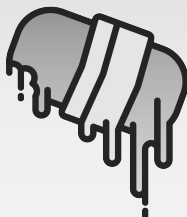

A site where you can order food from local restaurants when you're too lazy, tired, high, or incompetent to make it for yourself.

BuzzFeed

COMPANY NOTES

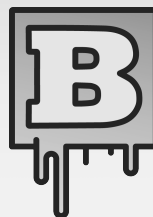

A website famous for listicles, quizzes, viral content, and out of nowhere, deeply sourced reporting on major political events.

Hot Pockets

COMPANY NOTES

A delicious microwaveable treat that comes in varieties such as Ham & Cheese, Chicken Bacon Cheddar, Pepperoni Pizza, and Sadness.

Breitbart

COMPANY NOTES

An alt-right news and commentary website that will make you long for the civility of Reddit and YouTube comments sections.

Blackwater

COMPANY NOTES

A private military contracting service, which has since rebranded twice to Xe and Academi. But they swear they're not X-Men villains.

Snuggie

COMPANY NOTES

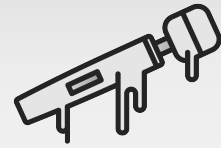

The most popular sleeved blanket in the world. Accept no imitation. It is also known as the Snuggler, Doojo, Toasty Wrap, and Slanket.

ChristianMingle

COMPANY NOTES

The "largest & fastest growing community of Christian singles." A 2014 survey reported that 61% of users were willing to have casual sex.

Hitachi Magic Wand

COMPANY NOTES

An electronic device that is ostensibly meant to massage sore muscles, but is actually used as a vibrator 100% of the time.

DivaCup

COMPANY NOTES

A menstrual cup that was described by the site Reductress as changing "everything about the way you collect your own blood."

Amazon Alexa

COMPANY NOTES

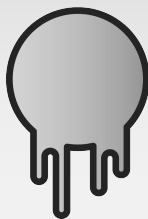

Amazon's cheerful AI assistant, who is magically imprisoned in a cylindrical speaker and suffers the daily indignity of hearing you poop.

23andMe

COMPANY NOTES

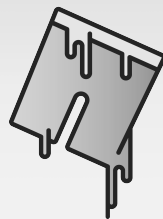

A genetic testing company where you spit into a tube and a month later learn that you're 6% Neanderthal and have something called the fat gene.

Plan B

COMPANY NOTES

A form of birth control that can be used after sex. Common side effects include nausea, breast tenderness, and awkward brunches.

SPANX

COMPANY NOTES

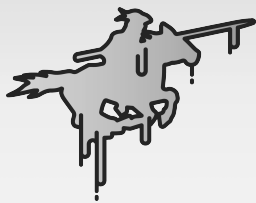

An underwear company that specializes in slimming garments that "help women feel great about themselves and their potential."

Grindr

COMPANY NOTES

A dating app for gay and bisexual men. Thought Catalog claims that "there are only two emotions on Grindr: boredom and horniness."

Medieval Times

COMPANY NOTES

A dinner theater set in the medieval era. There were no utensils in medieval times, hence there are no utensils at Medieval Times.

The Girl Scouts of America

COMPANY NOTES

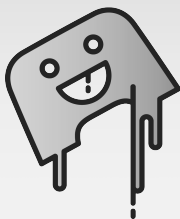

An organization for "girls of courage, confidence, and character, who make the world a better place." Also: cookies.

The Trump Organization LLC

COMPANY NOTES

A holding company for Donald Trump's fraudulent hotel, television, water, steak, beauty pageant, and fake university businesses.

Squatty Potty

COMPANY NOTES

A family-owned company that promises "the best poop of your life" when you use its patented toilet stool to "unkink the colon."

Jurassic Park

COMPANY NOTES

A dinosaur theme park near Costa Rica, founded by a billionaire philanthropist. It's totally safe. They're just testing the fences.

IKEA

COMPANY NOTES

A Swedish company that sells inexpensive, ready-to-assemble furniture that you construct with an adorable tiny metal key.

Arby's

COMPANY NOTES

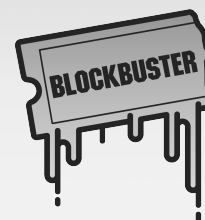

The 2nd largest sandwich chain in America, with over 3,300 "restaurants." Products include All Beef, Beef, Side Beef, and Double Beef.

Netflix

COMPANY NOTES

A video streaming site that no longer has the original Carl Sagan Cosmos, so despite everything else, it is dead to us.

Blockbuster

COMPANY NOTES

A chain of brick-and-mortar stores that rented VHS tapes and DVDs, while also providing jobs to 80% of America's unemployable teens.

Second Life

COMPANY NOTES

A deserted online virtual world that once boasted nearly 1 million active users. Now run by the Boy Mayor and his mysterious companion, Totino's.

GoPro

COMPANY NOTES

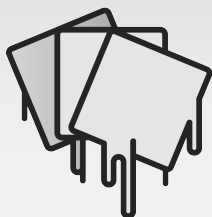

A video camera that can be strapped to an eagle, clipped to the end of a trombone, and survive falling from a plane into a pig pen.

CrossFit

COMPANY NOTES

A fitness company with over 13,000 "boxes." Sample workouts include rolling boulders up hills and having your liver pecked out by crows.

Cards Against Humanity

COMPANY NOTES

A party game where people answer black question cards with white answer cards until Jared says something racist again. Stop it, Jared.

Burning Man

COMPANY NOTES

An annual desert gathering of artistic self-expression. Come for the art cars, drugs, and music; stay for the merkins, kids, and dust.

GeoCities

COMPANY NOTES

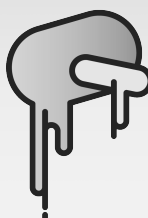

The OG web hosting service from the 90s that hosted your angsty teen poetry and collection of charming little construction man gifs.

WorldStar

COMPANY NOTES

A site that became famous for its aggregation of rap videos, user-uploaded street fights, and "terrifying extremes of human behavior"

Oculus

COMPANY NOTES

A company that makes virtual reality headsets. But definitely not for porn. I'm definitely not lawnmower manning porn right now.

Hot or Not

COMPANY NOTES

An iconic early 2000s website where you rated the hotness of users on a scale from 1 to 10. It helped inspire the creation of Facebook.

Ed Hardy

COMPANY NOTES

A clothing brand once described as "so hated that it cannot be worn ironically" along with Nazi uniforms, KKK robes, and self-tanner.

Silk Road

COMPANY NOTES

The internet's black market, where you can buy anything from a jar of sand to a $150K hitman to your own credit card number, probably.

Fleshlight

COMPANY NOTES

A sex toy shaped like a flashlight and designed to mimic a presumably human woman's vagina. They come in all shapes, sizes, and colors.

YouTube

COMPANY NOTES

A video sharing site where you can go straight from streaming a lecture on string theory to watching a chimp pee in its own mouth.

Instagram

COMPANY NOTES

A photo sharing app that immediately makes you feel bad about not being as interesting, attractive, or worldly as your friends.

SkyMall

COMPANY NOTES

A catalog featuring "unconventional" items from Justin Bieber floss to a "face trainer" that claims to reduce sagging by 71%.

lululemon

COMPANY NOTES

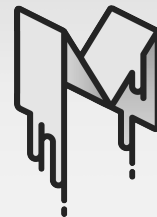

An apparel company that produces yoga-inspired clothing for moms, prospective moms, dog moms, and Google employees.

Etsy

COMPANY NOTES

An online store where you can buy lovingly handcrafted items, from $20 felt coasters to artisanally knitted vibrator coozies.

Medium

COMPANY NOTES

A blogging platform where you can turn your two-beers-deep rant about PC culture on college campuses into a thinkpiece no one will read.

The Catholic Church

COMPANY NOTES

One of the world's oldest religious groups. They have over 1 billion members worldwide. And run a country too? That's really weird.

La Croix

COMPANY NOTES

A flavored seltzer company that is inexplicably popular. Wired describes its appeal being its "bubbly, trustworthy blandness."

Martha Stewart Living Omnimedia

COMPANY NOTES

The conglomerate founded by Martha Stewart that includes all her media properties. It's still really weird that she went to prison.

TripAdvisor

COMPANY NOTES

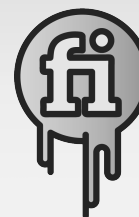

A travel site where people review marginally fun things to do on vacation. They've had several controversies around "revenge" reviews.

The Sharper Image

COMPANY NOTES

A retail store that offered random electronics, air purifiers, "high-tech lifestyle products," and something called the Robosapien.

Fiverr

COMPANY NOTES

A site where you pay a freelancer $5 dollars (or more) to do a little job for you, like designing an awful logo or being your fake Canadian boyfriend for a summer.

Y Combinator

COMPANY NOTES

An accelerator program for startups that offers mentorship and $120,000 in exchange for 7% equity and a five-year vow of celibacy.

FarmersOnly

COMPANY NOTES

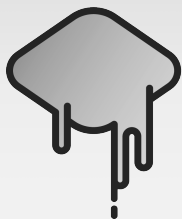

A dating site for "down-to-earth country types." Don't get any ideas, city folk. This is their place to let loose. It's farmers only in here.

Tesla

COMPANY NOTES

An electric car company founded by Elon Musk. They are building something called the Gigafactory in the desert that will almost certainly launch Skynet.

Viagra

COMPANY NOTES

A medication to treat erectile dysfunction. Side effects include heartburn, flushed skin, prolonged erections, and hearing loss.

LinkedIn

COMPANY NOTES

A business-oriented social networking service. There is literally nothing funny or interesting about this site.

Yelp

COMPANY NOTES

A crowdsourced review site for people to rank local businesses from 1-5 stars and to passively aggressively gripe about their server.

Tinder

COMPANY NOTES

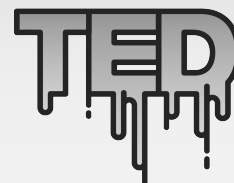

A dating app where you swipe left & right on people doing shirtless yoga poses next to sedated tigers in front of Machu Picchu.

craigslist

COMPANY NOTES

A site where you can find an apartment, buy a used saxophone, and wail into the void about the person you should've asked out on the train.

TED

COMPANY NOTES

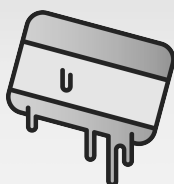

A conference series that includes inspirational talks like "How to Tie Your Shoes" and a performance of something called "beatjazz."

ISIS

COMPANY NOTES

A jihadi group whose goal is to institute a worldwide caliphate. They use the internet to recruit vulnerable people around the world.

Meetup

COMPANY NOTES

A social network that lets you find people in the real world who are willing to tolerate listening to your Dr. Who fan theories.

Edible Arrangements

COMPANY NOTES

The creator of and The Leaders in Fresh Fruit Bouquets There's no better way to say you tried, without having actually tried.
